Victor N. Bryant, CEO/President reports: "A tug and barge will be leaving today from the Port of Prince Rupert to Swamp Point North ("SPN"), Highbank's now fully commissioned aggregate quarry and barge load out facility. The barge load manifest lists two larger 350 Komatsu excavators and spare parts, fleeting barge loading system (winch and controls), diesel fuel, additional spare parts for other equipment, and general camp supplies to operate the site over the next few months." "The Company will now commence a work program that will concentrate on further site development, as well as the production and stockpiling of various sizes of construction aggregates in preparation for shipping."

In the News - LNG, pipelines and Port of Prince Rupert Development:

Royal Dutch Shell LNG- B.C. Government conditionally approves Royal Dutch Shell PLC, LNG project in Kitimat. For further information see The Globe and Mail - June 17/15 <http://ow.ly/OsFus>

AltaGas Ltd.- LNG Terminal- The CEO of AltaGas Ltd. says his company is on track to building Canada's first LNG export terminal by 2018, challenging an international report that said no such facility will be built in the country by 2020. Victor Bryant comments: "It would seem that LNG in B.C. has developed momentum since the Petronas conditional approval news and TransCanada Corp's natural gas pipeline approvals." "I have recently been in discussions with interested parties for our crushed aggregate products for delivery to Kitimat, which is approximately 130 miles by water from SPN."

Eagle Spirit Energy - A First Nation Oil Refinery and Pipeline Initiative

The following links offer an interesting narrative and varying opinions of the First Nations regarding the pipeline and refinery proposal. Eagle Spirit Energy is an aboriginal-owned consortium fronted by native leader Calvin Helin and underwritten by the Aquilini Group (owners of the Vancouver Canucks) that proposes a much different approach.

Victor Bryant comments: "An open and lively discussion as evidenced in these stories benefits all stakeholders in the process. Whatever the outcome, Highbank and its directors wholeheartedly support the First Nations peoples and their leaders to make the correct decision going forward." "An open debate is absolutely essential for an initiative of this magnitude not only for the First Nations, but for all who live in Canada."
