

Vancouver, BC / TheNewswire / March 17, 2016 - Doubleview Capital Corp. ("Doubleview") ([TSX-V: DBV], [OTC: DBLVF], [GER: 1D4]) is pleased to announce that its renewed application to obtain a pretrial injunction will be heard by the Supreme Court of British Columbia on May 24, 2016. The purpose of the pretrial injunction is to enjoin interference by named individuals with the Company's permitted exploration activities at its gold-copper porphyry property located in northwestern British Columbia. The renewed application will be narrower based than the initial application and will be reflective of the inducement of breach of contract and conspiracy claims.

Doubleview maintains high standards in the management of all its exploration programs. Doubleview continues to be strongly supportive of local businesses and communities and wherever possible employs local people in a broad range of capacities.

In 2014-2015, Doubleview retained professional archaeological consultants to complete an archeological overview assessment of its Hat Property, and their assessment guided current exploration activities. Doubleview's exploration activities have been conducted within the framework of the archeological assessment. Future exploration work will continue to be conducted within the framework of the archeological assessment and in compliance with the five year exploration permit.

Doubleview in the near future will complete sampling and analysis of remaining cores from 2015 exploration program. Details of the 2016 exploration program will be provided in due course.
